Juxtapose

Juxtapose. An unexpected combination of two or more items placed side by side. You and I are juxtaposed. We're similar only because we are made up of the same elements: heads, shoulders, knees, toes, skin, bones, muscles, and hair. What makes us diverse is on the inside. We all experience emotions, whether they are desirous, hateful, or loving. Despite these similarities, it's the combination of emotions and personalities that causes our differences.

Hundreds of us enter this building every day, and we all face different pressures. Seniors worry about their future while college plans loom over their heads. Juniors begin thinking about college, but are more concerned with keeping their grades up. Sophomores experience an easier year, asserting their supremacy over the newcomers while the apprehensive freshmen worry about fitting in. Each class stands mutually yet independently, therefore unknowingly defining:

Juxtapose

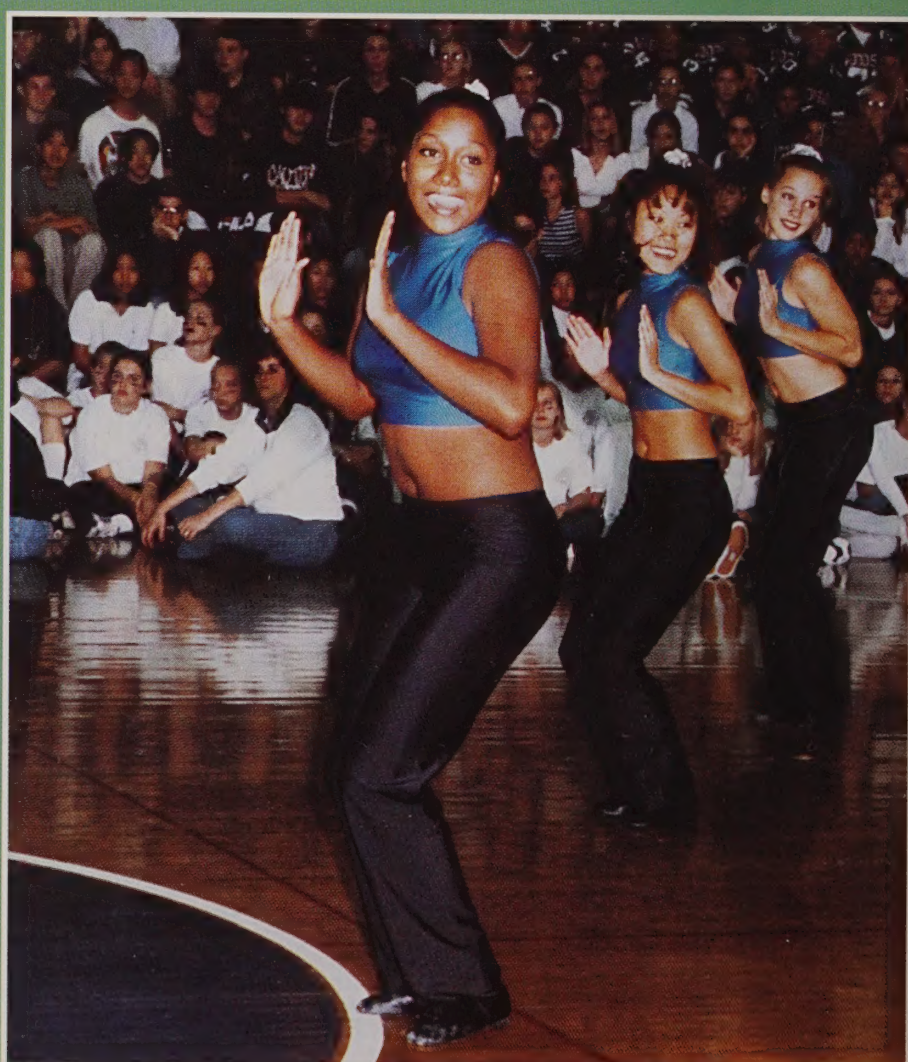

jək'-stə-pōz: an unexpected combination of shapes, colors, and ideas

Juxtapose

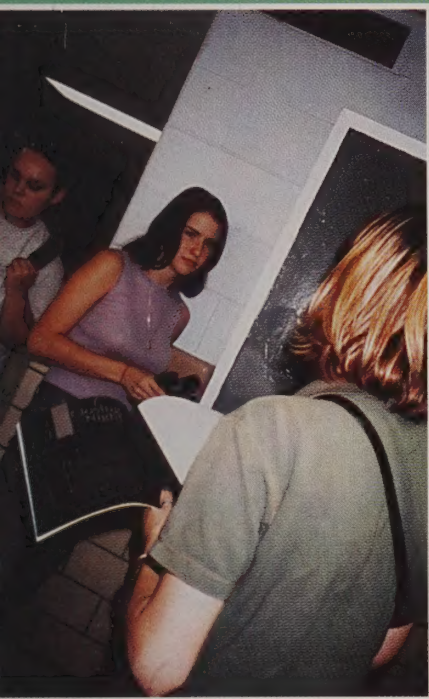

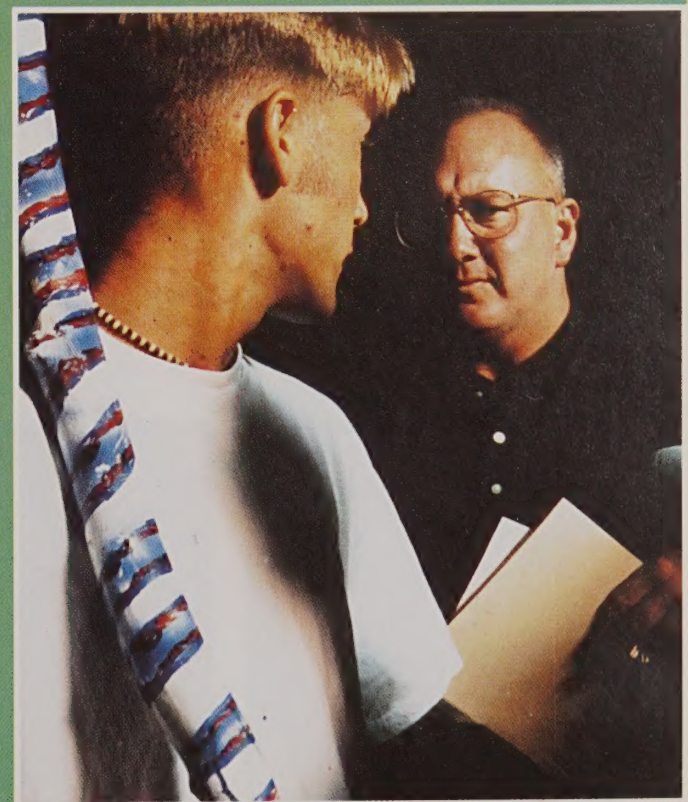

Kurt Vonnegut once wrote in his novel, Cat's Cradle, that all humans belong to a karass. A karass is one of many teams of humanity organized into groups of people who never discover all the aspects of their own karass. In Woodson words, a karass is is a group of people who are related without ever being aware of their connections. Our school is a karass. We are a group of juxtaposed humans; a set of different colors, shapes, and ideas placed side by side without ever being aware of our linkage.

We challenge you to become aware. Become so affiliated and associated with as many colors, shapes, and ideas that you forget what you once were. Forget the rules of cliquish social regulations. Express yourself, know yourself so well that you can know the opposite of yourself even better. Become a karass. Become an exclusive member of the crew called

Juxtapose

From the early peeps of morning to the closing hours of dusk, our lives revolved around getting to school, getting things done, and getting ready for more the next day. In between pens and papers, questions and quizzes, we attempted to juxtapose school with life. For 183 days, whether we liked it or not, school controlled our calendars, and the times and events that filled those calendars completed the equation and Homecoming activities were blotched out by torrential frustration with triumph. We rose to the occasion and fell juxtaposed ourselves to the fullest extent, and in the

of our year. While pottys and privileges went up in flames, downpours, we learned to balance elation with pain and with the herd, we won and lost, and came and went. We meantime, we learned to breathe.

High School for some is work, work, and more work. But for most, it's interacting with people of various shapes, sizes, and sorts. The days of "flesh" colored crayons are replaced with colors of olive, brown, peach, and cream. Signs around the school are printed in five different languages, and clubs are centered around diversity and differences rather than similarities and monotony.

The faces we see today mirror those we will see in the ecosystem that reflects what the real world is like. With tolerant, caring, and understanding people. Imagine what a world of dissimilarities. Compare that image to the extraordinary bow example of the power of Juxtaposition.

But I suppose that's okay with me because Cairo and I are meeting with the Great Sphinxes to get some pretty. Red Rover, Red Rover send Chloe on over, because Lelo will SCREAM IF SHE WANTS TO!!! Well, Carla, lady of the bridges, bunny named Nej and Baby Shae, if you need me I'll be snuggling with my radio or talking to some haughty boulders. Hmmm, I guess all I really want is to be Melissa Eboch- "Sometimes the best way to figure out who you are is to get to that place where you don't have to be anything else. I'm way down with the new and improved Ruca crew. Liggitt: Coco Cabana will live forever! I love you more than you know. You're my best friend in the world. LOU, KAH, MLP: I know things have been up and down with us, but I love all of you and I'm glad the Crew's reunited. DRL: Always remember." Joanne Swan Elling- "For every action there is an equal and opposite criticism. No one is listening until you make a mistake. Half the people you know are below average. If at first you don't succeed, destroy all evidence that you tried. Experience is something you don't get until just after you need it. A clear conscience is usually the sign of a bad memory. The problem with the gene pool is that there is no lifeguard. If you can't be kind be vague. Two wrongs are only the beginning, and if you must choose between two evils, choose the one you've never tried before. Always borrow money from pessimists, they don't expect it back and lastly, a conclusion is the place where you get tired of thinking." Matt Emery- "I can't believe it only took one brick to make that window drop." Derick Eng- "Hard work pays off in the future, but laziness pays off NOW."

Sherry Farnoushfar- "Arzu- this one is just for you- JAMWATCH-4-EVER! and to the rest of the class of '98, the last four years have been great, but the rest of our lives better be better! Always remember- people change, times change, our lives change, but through it all our FRIENDS REMAIN!" Beatriz Ferreira -Talexira- "The mass of people lead lives of quiet aspiration." John Fink- "Genie Fink is the hottest girl in the world. Grunge not dead!" Shawn Flanagan- "The list is long but distinguished, yea so am I." Robin Flood- "Hi baby! GNO. It's only mean if it's not true. Hey, Hey...nothing." Lisa Flosi- "Drew and Meredith you two are awesome. Thanks for all the memories. Drew lil 5 club lives on and Dusty will never die and Meredith always remember the Don Beyer campaign and paddiddle and lets not forget J & J. I love you guys. And THHANKSS!!" Joshua Foo- "Work hard and it will pay off in the future; slack off and it pays off right now. BB-guns invite cops. Asians lack an enzyme. Where's Jungle boy? It was consensual, 'wright'? Monkey style; WADHAM'S style? Who knows? I play monopoly at 2 am. Where the whale Mike?" Allison Fox- "You see me as you want to see me. With the simplest terms and most convenient definitions. But if that's all you see, then well, you don't see ME." Will Fox- "Mar 8:36 - 'What good is it for a man to gain the whole world and yet forfeit his soul?"

Rad M. Gabel- "Nonconformity has its price; however, those who stand up for their rights are true people." Lindsay Gumble- "There are not many things in life as beautiful as true friendship, and not so many things more uncommon. P.S. laughter is the best medicine, but caca and elephants' trunks are a close second." Alex Garmew- "No comment." Andie Garkens- "Hey guys, FROG YOU!! Being airborne in the Silver Bullet will always be TIGHT!! GP are ya with me? Oh yeah! Where are all these nernies coming from? I have my maggies on today. By the way, I car pool. WHATEVER!" Cathie Gambastiani- "Mahalo for a great 2 years Woodson! And to the OG, secret SOC society, USNA crew, and all my peerleaders in Honolulu and at Woodson-I love you all! You are forever-Rosebud." Gregory Lee Gillette Jr.- "I don't want to be a criminal, just a petty thug." Kevin Gust- "You gotta admit, the second time wasn't my fault." Matthew Gold- "I know I may have been a JERK throughout my four years of high school, but I feel it's because I wasn't FAKE." Brian Goldsmith- "Two roads diverged in a wood, and I took the one less traveled by, And that has made all the difference." Chris Goodwin- "Where? GoldenEye at C.O.? I'll take my tski. I wrecked my car playing trash can baseball. Props to the BC Crew, Bowling Club, the regal Dukes of Skazard, and the ninous Varsity Math Team. Seniors-the rest of your life is ahead of you, so regulators mount up...the night is young!" Charles Greer- "No officer, I don't know why you pulled me over. Are you trying to tell me the speed limit is not 85 mph? What, another concussion. Hey Adam, when are you going to fight me? Is Joey coming over? Yeah, he's taking a shower first though. It's spelled with an 'ey'." Ana Gugino- "Live life today as if it were the end tomorrow...and don't forget those cold beverages."

Nathan Habermeyer- "We gotta go, we gotta go right now. Would you leave me alone! I've learned to live with my confusion. D.O.W. lives on." Chris Hammett- "Never forget the times you can't remember. Are you tryin to get some otak tonight?" Tracy Hancock- "I trip when I walk sometimes to check if people really know I am there." Erik Hansen- "Unexpected things happen to me all the time, so I'm always aware of the penguin. 18, 21, 18, 21- which one for you? Taking the goggles off now." Mark Hanson- "So sleepy." Kristin Hardy- "Remember to plant your own garden and to decorate your own soul-and not wait for someone to bring you flowers. Lou, Lis, Ligs, Bev, and Abu, I love you guys, you mean the world to me. Please don't ever forget it." Carla Jenise Harris- "Thank God it's over." Devin Harrison- "My locker smells!!! Like FISH!" Keira Hart- "'I will, oh I will not forget you, nor will I ever let you go.' - Sarah McLachlan. 'If you want to make the world a better place take a look at yourself and make a change!'" -MJ. What are you guys doing this Friday? GNO RULES!" Patrick Hartley- "You spend most of your high school career waiting to get out. I finally made it. Bye!" Chrystal Heath- "I'm giving up SWEET and becoming a creature of PASSION, I'm a WILD THING that no one can fully POSSESS!! JVJBJ 4 EVER!" Lauren Hedrick- "Why is it still yellow!!-Kelly did you flush? Hey trainers that's my CHAIR!!" Craig D. Heggstad- "Who's staying up all night with me? How many times do I gotta say it, I'm Norwegian, the cold is in my blood. Waterfall on my count...For real, my first name really is Heggos. Is it 2:20 already, let's head out to the porch. Another round of B's up, I'm dealer. Good guy, good guy! Peace out Woodson, I'm done dundee!" Jennifer Hinkle- "Growing up happens in a heartbeat. One day you're in diapers; the next day you're gone. But the memories of childhood stay with you through the long haul...and the thing is...after all these years, I still look back...with WONDER. High school is like a drive by shooting:It doesn't matter what happened, you're just glad to get out alive. The boomerang is in effect, and the results are IN!-Yo, can I get a cold beverage?! Fuox high five, big four. SCHOOL SPIRIT

BY MEGHAN CALLAHAN

Pep rallies are a time for classes to show the rest of the school how much spirit they've really got. To promote class spirit, the Leadership class comes up with class competitions for the classes to compete in. Not only is class spirit promoted, but support for the school's various sport's teams, athletic events, performing arts, and musical groups is encouraged.

Competitions between the four classes have ranged from wheelbarrow races to pie eating contests in the cafeterias. During Homecoming week, classes were encouraged to participate in various competitions such as the skittle hunt and the limbo contest. Students were also encouraged to dress up in pajamas, twin wear, and decade garb on the famous and traditional spirit days.

Although Woodson's teams haven't always been blessed with winning records, the team spirit among the school's students has always been visible. On the opposite end of the spirit spectrum, other high schools who have winning records seem to be lacking in camaraderie between the students. So, if the end of a match, set, game, or race were to be decided by spirit - victory might occur more

"Our team is one of motivated teams out of coached or been a part team coach Dennis team's spirit was ex-teams at the winter pep team members ran into swimsuits, caps, and yelling cheers.

"Our team spirit was really hot which motivated us to keep going although the [amount of] fans was a little scarce. At the Annandale game during regions, if you looked at their school's side it looked like half of their student body was there, but we were two times louder," stated Maureen Selgas, a member of the Concorde District Champion Field Hockey team.

Another important aspect of the school's ongoing tradition was added to when the Class of 96' left the future classes a spirit rock. The rock has served as a spirit display and a message board for sports teams the four classes, and even a place for dates to be asked to Homecoming and Sadies.

At the very beginning of the year, ten unidentified Leadership students ran on a "Secret Mission" to both Fairfax and Lake Braddock high school's, painting their rocks all over with Woodson signs and colors.

So whether the students are painting their faces or painting a rock, the school has proven their spirit to themselves and their school.

PROMISE KEEPERS

BY SMITHA HANUMANTHA

Thousands of people, comprised mostly of men, flocked to one of the year's most publicized events in the nation's capitol, Washington, D.C.. The event was called Promise Keepers, a gathering that took place on the Mall, on October 4, 1997. The event was a rally of the Evangelical Christian organization which is a "ritualistic and emotional bonding" of thousands of men and boys.

The founder and chief executive of Promise Keepers, Bill McCartney stated, "the aim of this organization is to establish a vibrant church which requires for each man to answer to a pastor and that each church answer to other churches." Promise Keepers is also a ministry which experienced great growth since it was founded in 1990.

One important belief from all of the followers is that when men follow Jesus Christ, color and any other physical aspects are secondary. ROOM DECORATION

BY TIFFANY MARSH

It's a place to unwind, think, and reminisce. It's your bedroom.

"Your room is a place to express your interests, hobbies, and your talents. Your room is your own creation," says junior Michelle Jenkins. "Whenever I think about my bedroom what always comes to mind is the saying, 'if these walls could talk'."

Jenkins' room is half covered with Charles Barkley pictures, Got Milk? ads, Absolute posters, and lots of candles. Putting up posters of sports stars or favorite bands is the most common thing to find in a teenager's room.

"I don't like the wall paper that I have up, so I use a lot of posters and pictures of trips that me and my friends have gone on. I also have pictures and ticket stubs from concerts around my mirror right next to my lava lamp," says junior Candace Lund.

A big craze that most teenagers have introduced to their rooms is putting up glowing stars on the ceiling, doors, and mirrors. Freshman Steve Furs said, "I have those glowing stars all over my ceiling. I think that it's cool to see them at night when I go to bed."

How a person decorates their room depends on their interests. Junior Amy Ligenfelder has all of her basketball trophies and metals throughout her room.

"Some people decorate their rooms so that everything will match. I just do whatever I feel like doing to my room at the spur of the moment," says sophomore Scott Shumaker.

"I put up a lot of pictures of my friends, but I also have posters and random things that I like all around my room," says senior Leslie Benda.

Decorating and designing your room is a part of yourself. So the next time you look at a friend's room, look past the posters, and see the personality.

TEENAGE SUICIDE

BY KATIE THRONSON

This year, Woodson was shocked by the suicide of one of it's students. Unfortunately, suicide among children is becoming tragically common.

In 1965, suicide was the fifth highest cause of death among teenagers. In 1985, it was the third. Forty thousand people commit suicide a year, more than five thousand of them kids aged 15-19. Suicide is also increasing in figures among college students. Psychologists have noted that suicide pacts are starting to become more common among stressed out, helpless college students.

"Not many people suicide here at Miller came on the morning, it was kind restofas," said sopho-son.

The question most friends and family of a "Why?" There are teenager would at- selves, including sexual abuse, mental sure. Psychologists be hereditary like al- depression. Many victims of suicide be- they said or did to their own life. But almost never caused by one thing or what a person may have said to them. It is a combination of influences in their life and mental disorders.

Para-suicide is a suicide attempt that is really a cry for help. When this happens, the people surrounding the victim should seek help for them immediately.

"I think that many teens commit suicide because they have no where else to turn, and they think the only way out is death," said junior James Garcia.

There are often articles in the newspaper about suicide and ads for places and people that can help. If you are ever told by someone that they've been considering suicide, tell someone else such as a counselor, doctor, or parent. 50 percent of people who say they are thinking about suicide actually attempt it.

"To be or not to be: that is the question. Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrages fortune, or to take arms against a sea of troubles, and by opposing end them."

BREAKING UP IS HARD TO DO

BY RACHEL DAVIS

Some teenagers like to test a whole variety of boyfriends or girlfriends, while others avoid the entire issue. Everyone who chooses the former path will most likely end up learning what it feels like to "be rejected." In reality, it can be just as hard for the dumper as it is the dumpee, even if only for that brief moment when he or she chooses which cliched phrase to use as an explanation. Of course, not everyone's concerned with "letting em' down easy..."

It seems to be easier for people to remember how they broke up with an ex than it is to remember how someone else dumped them. That should encourage those who have just gone through a breakup and feel that they'll never get over it. Unfortunately for dumppees, the reasons most dumpers give are not their true reasons for breaking off a relationship.

Joanne Kunin felt she had to keep her real feelings a secret when she broke up with someone. Giving the guy the infamous line, "I just don't think it's working," Joanne did a good job of hiding the fact that she thought the guy was "just a dork."

Females definitely aren't the only ones who stretch the truth when ending a relationship. Grant Riffle used the same excuse as Joanne did, when he was actually breaking up with his girlfriend so that he could "party with [his] friends." There are certainly clear patterns in the reasons people break up. Guys seem to have similar reasons that make them decide that it's time to "call it off" as do girls. Jon Zanin says that a lot of guys can identify with breaking up with a girl simply because of boredom. "They get tired of the relationship or find out the person's not who they thought they were."

Stephen Krebs agrees that "guys need more variety, more space."

Tony Gioconda sums up the most prevalent male point of view: "We dump girls because we have short attention spans."

Though it may surprise many people, when asked why most girls break up with their boyfriends, the girls give reasons similar to those of males. Kirsten Agee says that "most girls find someone else attractive or just get sick of their current boyfriends."

Annie Levin and Joanne Kunin agree that most girls break things off because they get bored or they find someone else.

As they say, being a teenager is a time for broken hearts.

Life Training

Those who study the Qabalah (a timeless body of esoteric, complicated, and magical doctrines that are supposed to have been revealed to Adam by the Archangel Gabriel) believe it can be used to evoke benign and demonic spirits. One New Age group to take up the Qabalah is the International Gnostic Federation, a highly secretive organization who recruit interest by giving free lectures. According to the Cult Information Centre, some enthusiasts (particularly students) become so obsessed with Qabalah that they become alienated from their friends and family.

Order of the Solar Temple

This cult, before it's October suicide in Switzerland, believed that its leader, Joseph Di Mambro had once been a member of the Knight's Temple during the Crusades in a previous life. They believed that he would lead them through death to the planet of Sirius. During ceremonies, they wore crusade type robes and held in awe a sword Di Mambro claimed had been given to him 1,000 years ago. He claimed that his daughter Emanuelle was 'the cosmic child' and had been conceived without sex. Investigations revealed that 69 year-old Di Mambro moved to Canada following tax problems in his native France. He had convictions there of practicing psychology without a licence and bouncing cheques. He owned a 15 room mansion in the Haute Savoie, built with the proceeds of his school, "Centre for the Preparation of the New Age."

Life Training is one of many 'therapy cults' that have emerged in America and Europe in the past 20 years. Many stem from Ehrhard Seminar Training, founded in California in 1971. Life Training uses intense weekend course of anger provoking humiliation, sleep deprivation (16 hour days) and mass hysteria to break down the inhibitions and fears that prevent people from achieving success.

Hare Krishna

The most distinguishable of cults, thanks to the obligatory shaved head and pigtailed of male members (though wigs are sometimes worn during fund-raising). Members also wear a necklace with 108 beads, each representing the 'Hare Krishna' mantra. The complete set must be repeated 16 times a day, that is to say 1,728 'Hare Krishnas'. As vast amounts of money began pouring into its American headquarters, stories started circulating about fast cars, tax evasion, drug smuggling, and even murder. Many members are rejecting the sect's harsh laws which demands extreme abstinence, waking at 4AM, and cold showers. Krishnas believe in reincarnation, karma, and that chanting the mantra of Krishna will ward off the evil pollution of the materialistic world. There is also heavy emphasis on door-to-door selling.

P-HALL PRIDE

BY JAMES JUDYCKI

Walking through the hallways to get to class everyday may seem like a very mundane activity, unless one of your classes involves walking through the P-hall. You never quite know what to expect as you tread down the infamous hallway. Loud music? Dancing? Chanting?

The group of students involved in P-hall go a few steps past school spirit. From a holiday fiesta with a boom box, presents, and refreshments, to a day known as "Do What You Feel Day," these kids obviously have a creative imagination. No one quite knows exactly how many students are involved with P-Hall, and few really care. "We're a close group of friends, open to anybody," says senior Margaret Bruntrager. That's exactly what P-Hall means to most members - friends.

"We started out about four years ago. Four friends with big ideas. We decided to take on the school with the Weasel Army. They're like a family original Jon Zanin. P-said, "We're all about earth, and freedom, want." Wise words who, despite everyone else's impression, says he is not the P-Hall president.

"True friends are the ones who know all your faults and love you just the same."

To Steve Sawicki, being a P-Hall member means "pride, honor, and respect." Jon Zanin agreed, saying, "P-Hall is a state of mind. They're the best guys I've ever met." Many other students look up to the P-Hall as a model of friends being true to each other, having fun, and throwing parties outside Mr. Whalen's classroom. Junior Mike Guerdat went so far as to say he wishes he could be in the crew.

Most of the members also hang out together outside of school. "When we're not in the P-Hall, we're out playing football and helping old people cross the streets," said George Barry. Senior Amy O'Byrne added, "Next year when the majority of the P-Hall members are gone, school will be boring and quiet. The students will probably sulk in silence and solemnly swagger from class to class."

Surprisingly, not everyone enjoys the antics of the P-Hall crew. Sophomore Adam Asher complained, "when I walk through there I feel like a bowling pin getting knocked around." John Osterday defines the P-Hall crew simply as "the loud obnoxious people at the pep rallies."

To other groups of friends who make their mark in a hallway, the P-Hall crew serves as a template for how the others should act. Like Sawicki said, pride, honor and respect are key.

THE BIG 80'S RETURN

BY ALLISON MALL

Looking around the halls of Woodson, students are wearing a variety of different clothing, from camouflage pants to polyester flares. Looking back, some students recall many fashion disasters, and what they learned from those awful mistakes.

"Some of the things I used to wear were so bad, like my tight rolled jeans and layered socks," recalls senior Jenny Sweder.

Today, though, clothing from past decades have combined themselves, making the styles most commonly seen on teenagers today.

However, according to certain facts that never come matching outfit, a cran- berry and white pants, and never wear that again."

Although students now prefer Prom dresses to be simple and elegant, Ms. Julia Tucker-Lloyd remembers differently of her high school prom night. "We were all wearing dresses with big hoop skirts, so it was hard to get into a small car, and I had big bangs, teased hair, and purple eye shadow on."

Throughout the years at Woodson, fashion has had a tendency to repeat itself, bringing back many styles that students promised never to bring out of the closet again. Students never expected to be rummaging through their parents' closets to find old clothes. Just think, in 20 years, your kids will be wearing the clothes that you wear today, and still be at the height of fashion.

Whether we were tooting horns, scoring points, or calling meetings to order, afterschool hours were filled with diversions from the tedious, treacherous traps of schoolwork. 'Extracurricular' was the operative word this year, with more than 50 clubs, two drama productions, and over 20 sports teams students could use to fill their empty calendar space. While the Color Guard waved some flags, and the SPAM Club promoted kindness, others were busy sharpening their math skills and practicing their French.

Sports

The fields and courts provided us with space, while the sun and rain gave us the weather to play in. Both the teams and the spectators sat through our wins and losses, learning in the end, when the last touchdown was made, and the final play was completed, that spirit is sweeter than victory.

Whether we won or lost, we DID play the game, and every time, we played it with gumption and pride. Teammates became friends and coaches became confidantes. The sport metamorphosized into life - triumph, defeat, and a diversion from the rest of our world. We juxtaposed ourselves with balls, bats, running shoes, rifles, and sticks - the tools that helped us build success and satisfaction with a hard season's work.

"We do not

 days, we remember moments."

jok'-sto-pōz unexpected combination of color, shapes, and ideas

Upon the making of this book
 We gave our school a second look.
 Our staff worked hard and got the job done
 But throughout everything, we still had fun.
 Many days we stayed after eight
 McDonald's, Papa John's, and Bagel Bakery have become first rate.
 With layouts, captions, and picas still
 To see this book is such a thrill.

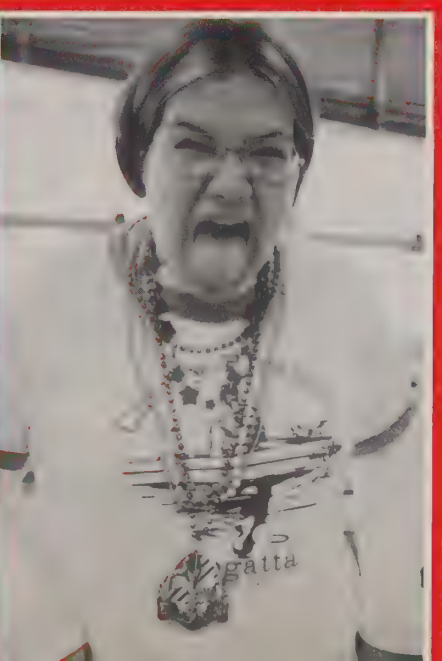

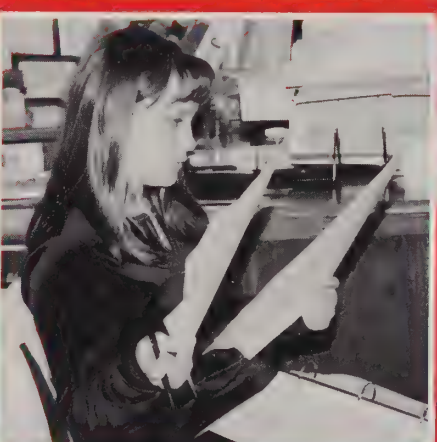

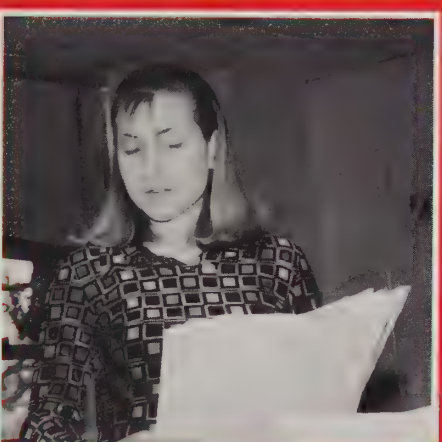

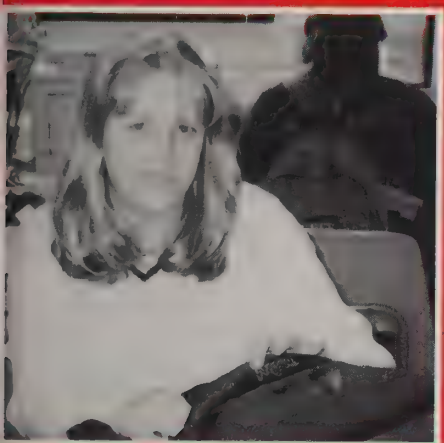

To many people we give thanks
 But only Mr. Trone and Charlo can give us spans.
 To our fifteen editors who worked a lot
 We appreciate everything, even though we fought.
 To Pete, our publisher, who saved our butts
 Who over and over again, got us out of our ruts.
 We thank the Isaacs for their loyal hospitality
 On many nights there, we showed our true individuality.
 To Ms. Pitzel and Mr. Whalen who many times stayed here late
 We are thankful for your help, even though you might have had a date.
 To our bomb photographer Jessica, or shall we say Jon
 We couldn't have done it without you, your skittles, or your pen.
 Our staff proved to us that they could stand the heat
 But this year's book will never, ever be beat!
 Thanks to Emily and Max, the mugs were done with care,
 It's now up to Emily to take care of our tuting chair.
 The copy and the mini-mag were created with style
 By Charlo each deadline-service with a smile.
 Our four senior editors (Lindsay, Monica, Arzu & Jen T.) created each section

Every detail and layout, what outstanding perfection!
 To Jessie and Susan, who kept ordering film
 All 900+ rolls were used, although Segall was grim.
Kristin and Melissa publicized throughout
 We had the best posters and parties, without a doubt.
 The proofs and names were checked by Sarah and Mandy
 That is why our book is so gosh-darned dandy!
Kelley (that's with an E!) sold the books all year,
 Receiving the money, always with cheer.
 To Moto Photo we went many a time
 Spending more than our limit- much more than a dime.
 To the administration and especially Dr. Miller
 Thanks for all your support- this book was a killer.
 To Ung who did a better job at keeping the room cleaner than us
 Who never sent us out before eleven, even though we always did fuss.
 And finally to Ms. Lloyd who always did so much
 We give you our thanks and gratitude as such-
 You never kicked us out and you never did snitch,
 Take the rest of the year off- heck, spend some time with Rich!

To all of the people who helped us throughout
 We give you this book, so enjoy and peace out!

eighteen editors and fifteen staff members created the 320 pages juxtapose book during fourth and fifth period, and after school, on the weekends, and all nighters. foxy roxy and lean gene let us vegetate in their basement as we pigged out on soup and popcorn on our deadlines. our representative, pete griffins from josten was kind enough to keep smiling as we kept breaking our dates with him.

every caption you read was in the font joanna mt, size 10 as well as those facts you read on the sports section and "tidbits" in the student life section. the headlines for each section juxtaposed among each section: sports was fragile; clubs was alleycat icg; performing arts was bernhard tango; student life was bobodo (bodoni ultrabold flf); people section had klang mt; and the dividers were typed in dom casual. the senior section and the mini mag had too many fonts for us to keep track of, but there's at least klang mt, courier, and geneva. each folio tabs were hand created by kara using dom casual, size 22. dori thought up of the thank you poem and she typed the whole thing, but we didn't give her the credits.

when you opened the book to the first signature (16 pages) was in color, you could see that we used all kinds of spot colors on those pages. we kept "misplacing" the process color chart, so we're not sure of the official names. but the next signature, which included the senior section, had only one spot color, which was tempo 287 royal blue, and the last section tempo 185 fire engine red.

our mini mag looked more like a magazine than the classifieds of the newspaper, that's because charlo added her flair to it. the 98 different ways of how we survived at woodson came from our seniors. fifth period went out and interviewed people to get three different facts about each sport and for "tidbits" in the student life section. they also wrote the articles which you read in the mini mag.

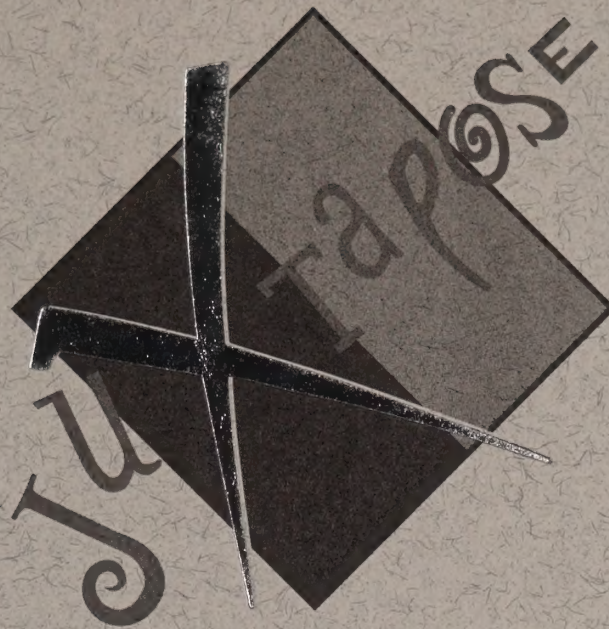

our all-around editor jessica took most of the team pictures, picked up the ball if anyone dropped it, and took pictures of nearly every event that took place in school. we were so grateful when dr. miller let kara and lauren into the room on a friday night so they could get the printer disk and when coach fitz let tiffany and jessie in the room on a saturday. but the person that we're most grateful for is our "mommy," julia lloyd. we kept her in the room 24/7, even rich couldn't rescue her from our deadlines.

we kept ourselves from going postal between tears with el jése's and emily's shakers, charlo's tuting chair, and mr. trone's p-nette dance. the cute guy at target didn't hurt either. kara hogged internet for pharley and everyone fought over to read their e-mails at hotmail. but those yearbook macs, printers, and that darn network made sure that we stayed in the room for hours. our social lives moved into d6. our yearbook life revolved around juxtapose.
